COSMETIC MOLE REMOVAL

MOLES ARE COMMON in the sunny Australian climate. The vast majority of moles that appear on the skin before the age of 30 are commonly non-cancerous, but can cause irritation on the skin or be a cosmetic nuisance.

Unwanted protruding moles and skin tags can be removed by a simple radio-frequency procedure by our experienced team. Your moles will initially be checked by a doctor and any lesions of concern will be sent to the laboratory for testing. The procedure takes a short time, and requires only a local anaesthetic, which is very fast acting. A small dressing is applied afterwards, which can be left on during showers and is removed a few days later. You can resume normal daily activities after your procedure.

You don't have to live with unsightly, raised moles on your face, neck or body if you don't want to. And you don't have to undergo the knife or scalpel, leaving a long white scar or use stitches to have the moles removed. If you feel self-conscious or just want the mole removed, then talk to us today.
