Seven-point lift puts a smile on city's faces

THE treatment designed for Generation X has come to Brisbane in time for the party season.

Cosmetic Image Clinics general manager Allison Dale said the non-surgical seven-point lift, or liquid lift was designed for the younger generation and gave quick results.

"It's a great choice to give yourself a boost; it's the holiday look without taking the holiday," Ms Dale said.

She said they were among a handful of clinics able to perform the procedure in Brisbane.

Co-founder of Cosmetic Image Clinics, Dr Ingrid Tall said the seven-point lift helps to freshen up tired looking skin.

"People often feel they look older than they feel on the inside, where they have lots of energy," Dr Tall said.

"In this treatment you volumise and enhance certain areas of the face."

Areas include under the corners of your mouth, dark circles under eyes, enhancing cheeks or defining your jaw-line using muscle relaxants, collagen stimulators or other treatments.

Dr Tall said people were starting younger and opting for micro-maintenance procedures such as this from their 20s onwards.

The clinic also houses the only commercial swimming pool in the CBD, which is available to members of their gym, the Aquarius Health Spa.

They also have the only bathhouse in the city.

The spa offers pilates mat, yoga and meditation classes along with packages combining massages, scrubs and facials.

Ms Dale said having so many services under the one roof was perfect for their busy clients.
